TERROIR

The Minervois is a large natural amphitheatre, facing due south. Between 30 and 60 km away from the sea, the climate is Mediterranean. The vineyards are studded with bories, stone shelters constructed by the winemakers when clearing the rocky slopes before planting the vines. The terroir is made of schist.

WINE MAKING

Hand-picked from high-lying vineyards, cold maceration, partial carbonic maceration and gentle winemaking process; fermented separately in barrels and concrete vessels and blended for maturation before bottling.

TASTING NOTES

A robust and concentrated wine, with a firm backbone of red and black fruits, and heady wafts of heath-land shrubs and pepper on the nose. Muscular tannins provide weight and length. Partner with the rustic flavors of aged meats or strong cheese.
